

THE DEATH ROLL.

Three Prominent Citizens Pass Out of Life.

DR. JAMES J. WARING, OF SAVANNAH.

Mr. LaFayette Carrington, of Milledgeville, and Mr. Joseph C. Jepson, of Muscogee County.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—Mr. Lafayette Carrington, an aged and highly esteemed citizen of this city, passed quietly away this morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Carrington was secretary and treasurer of the Masonic lodge here; was county school commissioner, and was doing a very successful insurance business. He was for many years clerk of the house of representatives, and filled that position with sincere devotion.

Mr. Carrington, although a South Carolinian by birth, was wedded to the welfare of his adopted state, and failed to work in her upbuilding. He was a man of perfect integrity, much intellect and a strong advocate of the right. Few men can fill the positions he filled as he filled them, and his death makes a loss that no one can retrieve. He will be buried tomorrow. He was 65 years of age at time of his death.

DR. JAMES J. Waring Dead.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—Dr. James J. Waring, a prominent physician and citizen, died this morning. He had been in poor health for a year, but the immediate cause of his death was a congestive chill. Dr. Waring leaves a large estate. Much of his property consists of land in the southern portion of the city. He leaves three children. One son, Alston, is the assistant postmaster of Savannah.

Death of Mr. Joseph C. Jepson.

COLUMBUS, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—Mr. Joseph C. Jepson, a prominent citizen, died at his residence on Third avenue, at 2:30 this morning. He was 65 years old, and one of the first citizens of Columbus. The funeral took place this afternoon.

Death of Dr. Duggan.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., January 8.—[Special.]—A telegram was received this morning stating the death of Dr. James Duggan, of Wake Forest. His remains are expected here tomorrow evening. It seems, indeed, that the good die first.

WEALTH IN TIMBER.

Albany Lays Claim to a Good Location for a Can Factory.

"We ought to have a can factory here," said Mr. A. J. Lewis, president of the Albany Can Company, yesterday. "We do not believe that fifty gallons per day would be too small an estimate, but in spite of all this you seldom see a drunken man. A fellow occasionally appears upon the streets feeling good and showing his humor, but even this is not a common occurrence."

But in spite of all this amount of liquor sold to us citizens in our city, we have a small estimate, but in spite of all this you seldom see a drunken man. A fellow occasionally appears upon the streets feeling good and showing his humor, but even this is not a common occurrence."

LIQUOR FOR ATHENS.

The Amount of the Ardent Consumed by Our Thrift Population.

From the Athens, Ga., Banner.

In passing Mr. J. A. Fowler's barroom, just over in Madison county, a few days ago, a gentleman told the "Athens Atchanta" that he counted seventy-one county liquor barrels in front of this establishment, all of which liquor is said to have been disposed of during the recent holidays, but Fowler, on the "Athens Atchanta," said that the main saloon of him Mr. R. R. Sauter is located, and sells a great deal of liquor; a half mile further on is Mr. Phillips' barroom, and a mile more and you come to Mr. John H. Mathew's bar and distillery. Mr. Mathew has also extensive property in the city, and also several other parts in the free state, but these five bars we have enumerated, do the largest business with Athens sending a large majority of their products to this city. A party who is in a position to know tells us that not less than a barrel of liquor is sold daily. The average price per gallon of liquor is $1.00. You can watch the express wagon any day, and the bulk of its freight will be cases and jugs of liquor.

There are about two hundred and fifty persons in the city, who buy their liquor in the free state, but these five bars we have enumerated, do the largest business with Athens sending a large majority of their products to this city. A party who is in a position to know tells us that not less than a barrel of liquor is sold daily. The average price per gallon of liquor is $1.00. You can watch the express wagon any day, and the bulk of its freight will be cases and jugs of liquor.

Mr. Mathew is a man of great energy and ability, and is a strong advocate of the right. Few men can fill the positions he filled as he filled them, and his death makes a loss that no one can retrieve. He will be buried tomorrow. He was 65 years of age at time of his death.

Editor Haney of the DeKalb Chronicle.

Lately entertained his correspondents on road bed and stowed potatoes. The Butler Herald has also made a spread for its correspondents, and now the thing promises to become epidemic.

The Ellijay Courier thus sheds light upon a local society event:

The latest dodos of Cupid were the marriage of Mr. Jerome Smith to Miss Ida Aaron, both of Tazewellton. The nuptials took place in the city in a quiet manner.

We do not believe that fifty gallons per day would be too small an estimate, but in spite of all this you seldom see a drunken man. A fellow occasionally appears upon the streets feeling good and showing his humor, but even this is not a common occurrence."

THE SOCIAL RECORD.

Echoes From the Season's Festivities.

BALLS, RECEPTIONS AND PERSONALS.

On Friday Mr. Charles T. Logan, of Atlanta, delivered an interesting address at the famous old Gymnasium in Brunswick. In addition to the pupils of the academy a large number of ladies and gentlemen were present. The gathering was a success. Mr. Logan was prevailed upon to give some meditation on his work in this direction was very pleasing, provoking hearty applause. Mr. Logan has been invited to return to Brunswick in the near future and add an entertainment for the benefit of the medical association.

An "antique party" Thursday evening at the hotel in Hamilton was a great success. About twenty couples were in attendance, dressed in the full party style of fifty years ago. The scene was tragi-comic. The gaudy and elaborate array prepared for the occasion, did not come out half military as it's a suit of our father's time. The ladies were beautifully attired in elegant toilette suitable to the occasion, and the array of costumes and beauty was attractive. There were flowers in profusion, and the ladies' hats and the men's top hats and peaked caps made the scene an entrancing one. No one could have viewed this assembly of fascinating beauty without having the conviction forced upon his mind that there is nothing so pretty as the fair sex of Hamilton.

A magnificent New Year's ball and splendid banquets were given by the young men of Hamilton. Albany's band furnished music. Among the lovely attendants were: Misses Rose A. Miller, R. Stern, Columbus Delta; Wetherhume, Cincinnati; Ohio; Sallie Baker, Florida; Fannie Swindle, Gainesville; N. A. Nathalie Compton, Valdosta, Ga.; Maggie Parker, Newton, Ga.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents in Homestead, January 4th, Mr. Jasper Ayers and Miss Lizzie Dyer.

The New Year's ball given at the city hall in Madison Monday evening was quite an enjoyment. Quite a number of young people were present, who seemed to enjoy themselves immensely, "tripping the light fantastic toe." We note the following couples present:

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John, Miss Susan Pittard, Miss Bert Shumans, Minnie Pow, Mr. E. G. L. Ross, Miss Pauline Pow, Mr. Antonio Carr, Miss Belle Martin; Mr. H. E. Walker, Miss Fannie Martin; Mr. F. D. High, Miss Berta Flomoy; Mr. L. H. Walker, Miss Anna Walker; Mr. H. C. Anderson, Miss Anna Anderson; Mr. A. K. Anderson, Miss Anna Anderson; Mr. J. H. Anderson, Miss Anna Anderson; Mr. W. W. Blackburn, Miss Carrie Hough, R. U. Thompson, L. H. Foote, J. F. Godfrey, R. W. Andrews, E. L. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Saiford, W. L. Walker.

The conditions of the match were not worth much.

Society circles have been unusually lively and interesting in Valdosta for the past two weeks. Balls, parties and private entertainments were common, and all were pleasant and enjoyable.

The most prominent social event of the season was the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Parker, in Hart's hall, last Monday evening. It was a happy hour in every sense of the word. The young lad wrote notes and made engagements with the gentlemen, and escorted them to the hall in couples. No one could have been more at ease than he, when he chose to engage him in the dance or promenade, or otherwise show him attention, he was consigned to the inevitable position of a "wall flower." The ladies acquitted themselves in a manner that was creditable to all, and the second passed off without any unpleasant incident to mar its complete success. The following couples were in attendance: Miss Marie Clark with Mr. W. P. Roberts; Miss Belle Moore, with Mr. J. R. Slater; Miss Tommie Young, of Bullock county, with Mr. C. Ashley; Miss Anna Anthony, of Valdosta, with Mr. W. A. Williams; Miss Lulu Vandee, with Mr. Charles Lamar; Miss Minnie Clark, with Mr. E. F. Strickland; Miss Fannie Lou Briggs, with Mr. Joe Lang; Miss Fannie Stetson, with Mr. W. H. Clegg; Miss Adrienne Terry, with Mr. W. S. Smith; Miss Almy Smith, with Mr. Dan Denison; Miss Mamie Jones, with Mr. J. B. Bond; Miss Bellie Middleton with Mr. Sid Mansen; Miss Mary Clegg, with Mr. W. C. Clegg; Miss Kate Terry, with Mr. Frank Baldwin; Miss Fannie Parker, with Mr. Frank Pampano; Miss Fannie Pardee, with Mr. Perry; Miss Anna Grimes, with Mr. W. H. Williams; Miss Lila Stuart, with Mr. E. W. Peeples, and Miss Lily Jones, with Mr. Alex Dasher.

Mr. J. D. Dobbins and his daughter, Miss Estelle, have returned from Jonesboro, where they have been spending their winter.

Mr. William H. Clark, of Atlanta, is visiting friends in Gadsden, Ala.

Mr. L. A. Baldwin, of Talbotton, is in the city at the guest of many friends.

BIRDS OF PASSAGE.

Money Scarce in Aspinwall—The Canal Work.

ASPINWALL, Panama, December 1887.—Now with the exception of one man has money sent so scarce as now in Aspinwall, or "Colombia," as the place is still generally called. Even in the darkest days of revolution business was not so dull, nor people so utterly despondent. Daily foregatherings of former business men have taken place here, and the result is a palpably dark, desperately blue—over everything Isthmian. Men go about with hands in their pockets and gloom upon their faces, and refuse to speak to each other, and the world winks over to the outlook of affairs.

In social circles the general depression is increased by the rumor that a couple of hundred canal employees—not day laborers, but those in the service of the contractors—have discharged in the interest of economy. The ray of sunshine comes with the increasing excitement in regard to the Nicaraguan project, and the hope that with the growth of that enterprise, labor will find more employment. This excellent company can certainly depend on a good audience whenever they may again appear in our city.

SHADOWS OF A GREAT CITY.

This magnificent play will begin a season of four days this evening and we have no doubt that our citizens will be immensely pleased with the performances.

"Shadows of a Great City" was originally produced at McVicker's theatre, Chicago, for five consecutive weeks in 1888. It has since been successfully presented in all the leading theatres throughout this country and in Australia; and it is now in its third year in London. The play is under the management of Chas. R. and Thos. Jefferson sons of George Jefferson and will be presented by a cast marvelously adapted to the requirements of the piece. The drama, the admirable scenic effect, special contrivance for lighting, the sets and properties necessary for its production being carried by the company, and are of the most costly and elaborate character. The tour has been a grand universal ovation wherever it has been produced. It is thoroughly dramatic in its action and its characters. Its scenes and surroundings are elaborate and beautiful, and some of the more prominent effects are such as a degree rarely seen on the stage. The story is a combination of tragedy and comedy, showing one another natural and effectively.

The dialogue is well written and the action is brief.

COLONEL JOHN P. SHANNON, an able and popular lawyer of Atlanta, and a candidate for state senator in the twentieth senatorial district, is mentioned at the Kimball.

The crew of small, white night-gowned boys, while I admired her small head's noise,

And, meditating on her dress.

While others sang with zealousness,

I alone was confused,

For the lute.

Such shoulders, such a perfect waist,

A Grecian Venus might have graced,

Her toilette was in perfect taste.

"As fair as dainty and well bred," said

"Then, when she turned her pretty head,

She turned mine, too.

The girl in front.

She sat before me alone, the aisle,

She looked so sweet, so free from guile,

I thought of you, for awhile,

She had a fashionable hat,

Its shape, its profile, its flat,

And her back hair.

Unbeheld was the organ's noise,

The crew of small, white night-gowned boys,

While I admired her small head's noise,

And, meditating on her dress.

While others sang with zealousness,

I alone was confused,

TREATED AS MAD

And Cast Into an Asylum for the Insane.

WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN 13 YEARS.

A Legislative Investigation Develops the Story of a Most Startling Crime.

CONCORD, N. H., January 8.—A remarkable story has just been made public through the decision of the committee appointed by Governor Sawyer to investigate the circumstances connected with the case of Richard Woodham and wife, of this city, who have been confined in an insane asylum for thirteen years, and whom the commissioners decided to release.

The beginning of the case came about through a mortgaged to a Tyler street house.

A payment which was past due, and which had not been honored on the mortgage, Mrs. Woodham declared she had paid. The holder denied it. She stuck to her declaration, and would neither move nor pay. City Marshal McDougal, in the capacity of a deputy sheriff, evicted them from the house. They refused to remove the furniture, which officers pried into the street. The police afterward took the goods to the city hall, where they were sold at auction.

Last night large consignments of fowls and dogs came in from North and South Carolina. Several noted chicken fanciers and dog breeders will reach Atlanta.

It is certain that this year's exhibition will be entirely successful, and the chances are, it will eclipse any of its predecessors.

THE POULTRY AND BENCH SHOW.

The Exhibition Opens Today in the Building Corner of Alabama and Forsyth Streets.

The annual exhibition of the National Poultry and Bench association will begin in Atlanta this morning.

The hall in which the show will take place is corner of Alabama and Forsyth streets. It is spacious, well lighted and ventilated. The interior arrangements are admirable. The coops, benches and kennels are nearly all tenanted. So fine a display of fowls and canine beauties has never been seen in the south. The indications are that this exhibition will surpass the one held last year.

The fowls are in charge of Mr. Tom Ware and the dogs are in charge of Mr. F. G. Kalb. All are well cared for.

A considerable number of visitors are already here, and others will come in to-day. The opening day should be made a notable success. The residents of Atlanta ought to visit the show.

It is to be hoped that the dogs will be well behaved.

THE T. P. A'S.

Two Hundred of the Tack Hammer Brigade Arrive in Atlanta.

SUMPTUOUS SUPPER AT THE MARKHAM Tendered Them by Mr. Joseph M. Brown, of the W. & A.—All En Route to the Jacksonville Convention.

Last night long before 7 o'clock the Union de pot presented a lively appearance. It was filled with local railroad men and citizens who were anxiously awaiting the arrival of a special train on the Western and Atlantic railroad. This was the special train of six sleepers which brought down the members of the Traveling Passenger Agents association of the United States and their families.

At precisely 7 o'clock the special train rolled in and there was a stirring scene as the passenger agents disembarked. They formed by two's in line and proceeded at once to the Markham house. They presented a fine appearance as they moved into the reception room at the Markham. The gentlemen were good looking and the ladies handsome. The party passed into the dining-room and were soon engaged in discussing the merits of an elegant supper which Mr. Joseph M.
Brown, president of the W. & A., had arranged for them.

He was a stranger in a strange land, without a sou in his pocket, without a friend in the world, without the power to speak one word of English, and he had not a morsel to eat all day long.

The reporter got so tired of looking at the picture some sold him a forged bill in the language, and learned all these things through an American gentleman who acted as interpreter.

The same American gentleman, in his character of a showy, though hungry soldier in a restaurant, gave him all he could eat, and while these lines are being written in the fifth story of The CONSTITUTION building, thanks to the kind heart of Charlie, the waiter, the stranger is dining in room 494 at the Kimball House.

He was a stranger in a strange land, without a sou in his pocket, without a friend in the world, without the power to speak one word
of English, and he had not a morsel to eat all day long.

The reporter will set out for New Orleans, where half of the people speak his native tongue and where the American reporters have got too tired to "Howl out" just yet.

Tomorrow he will set out for Atlanta, where the reporter will be welcomed by the American newspapermen.

The reporter accompanied the party, and it could not have been in better hands. They will certainly leave nothing undone to contribute to the pleasure and comfort of their splendid charge. The special train will be at Kingman, Mo., and Mr. Brown, general passenger agent of the Western and Atlantic, and Mr. Alton Angier, assistant general passenger agent of the same line. President Charles E. Harmon looked perfectly happy and with a smile on his face, with a group of his old Atlanta friends, said, "We had our most delightful run from Chattanooga. We left there at 1 o'clock today, and all on board thoroughly enjoyed the trip."

The supper the party registered, and The CONSTITUTION takes pleasure in presenting the following:

COMPLETE LIST OF NAMES:

N. A. Anderson, wife and daughter, Charleston,
W. Va.; O. P. Anderson, Springfield, Ohio;
Albert C. Anderson, wife and daughter, Howard J.
Anderson, wife and daughter, Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. C. M.
Anderson, wife and daughter, Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. H. C. Holobird, of Cincinnati, secretary, and Mr. J. A. Quinlin, Chicago, treasurer.
